Types of Intelligence and Intelligence Information

Required to Meet USIA's Essential Needs

1. A statement of the types of intelligence and intelligence information required to meet USIA's essential needs is contained in Part 1, Conclusion 3c, pp. 1-3, of the "Report of the Survey of Intelligence Needs and Assets of the USIA," circulated to the IAC under IAC-D-82/1, 5 August 1954.

2. Part 1, paragraph 4b, page 4 of the survey report recommends that the IAC agencies approve this statement as a basis for providing intelligence and intelligence information to USIA. Part 2, paragraph 4, page 5 of the survey report recommends that the IAC agencies approve this statement with certain modifications indicated (see part 2, conclusions 3a and 3b, page 5) as a basis for meeting the related needs of their respective agencies.

3. Approval by the IAC agencies of these two recommendations will assist in developing fully coordinated intelligence support for foreign information and psychological warfare activities.

4. It would be appreciated if the IAC agencies would indicate their concurrences or nonconcurrences to [REDACTED] Code 143, Extension 766 by 10 September 1954. This subject will not be placed on the IAC agenda unless the Secretary is requested to do so.
